When on the ranch, the first thing I would do every morning was to look to Mr. Franklin.
How variously he clothed himself!

Sometimes he wore a simple grey and he was dull and forbidding; sometimes he adopted a delicate pinky gauze and he was a height dropped down from fairy land; sometimes he wore a rich full purple and he was a naughty monarch. No two days did he wear the same garment, no two days was he the same, yet he was always the same only looking in different lights.

We are always the same, all ways sons of God, but according to the atmosphere we breathe around him, different we seem! Sometimes selfish and brutal, sometimes generous and divine, sometimes hard and callous, sometimes kindly and sympathetic.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 28.—The supreme court today requested the federal court of appeals at New York to send up for review on its merits David Lamar's conviction of having impersonated an officer of the United States.
The court acted today on its own motion after having refused to interfere in the case some time ago.
Lamar, the so-called "wolf of Wall street," was convicted in evidence which disclosed that he had impersonated former representative Mitchell Palmer in telephone conversations with some prominent Wall street men, the intent of which, the government alleged, was to defraud J. E. Morgan and company.

E. various districts.

The lecture on Modern Drama and women, which was to have been given Saturday afternoon by Mrs. T. C. Phillips, was postponed and will be given instead on Wednesday afternoon at 8 o'clock in the First Christian church. The usual meeting of the club will be held at 2 o'clock. The only business to come before the meeting will be the election of officers and board of directors. As this is expected to be a most harmonious event, for opponents to the nominating committee's slate have been presented, it is not probable that it will be a very much time. In Mrs. Phillips' lecture she will discuss three plays, giving a dramatic reading from each. The first will be "The Galop" by John Galsworthy. This play is a tragedy of non-malicious gossip. The second play, "The Fugitive," by Shaw, is a comedy, a woman living her own life, and developing her own character and individuality without regard for tradition. The final play, "Womenkin" by Gibson, is an exponent of the new woman's clarity toward her own life and her own stage.
